Cone Mills Makes Annual Statement To Stockholders

Cone Mills Corporation last Friday mailed its annual statement to stockholders. Included were statements of the company's financial condition at the end of 1955 and a five year summary of the same. These are explained graphically on this page of The Textorian.

In outlining future prospects, President Ceasar Cone and Chairman of the Board Benjamin Cone stated:

"Prospects for 1956 are clouded by the threats of foreign competition and uncertainties regarding the Federal Government's policy on cotton price supports. The impact of the dollar minimum wage will undoubtedly increase the price for garments when they reach the retail market, and it is difficult at this time to forecast the reaction of the buying public to these increased prices. While the full effect of production from the company's new finishing facilities will not be felt during 1956, other production changes now under way and the expansion of the company's converting operations should result in earnings for the first six months of this year at least equal to, and probably better than, those for the first six months of 1955. Predictions beyond the first half of the year cannot be intelligently made."

The report also included a summary of the company's operations during 1955. The summary discussed the curtailment in the production of denims, the deferment of plans for a new denim plant in San Marcos, Texas, the building of the Carlisle Finishing Plant in South Carolina (now under construction), the moving of the company's sales headquarters to 1440 Broadway, New York City from 59 Worth Street there, the liquidation of the Proximity Mercantile Company and plans for termination of the company's synthetics weaving operation.

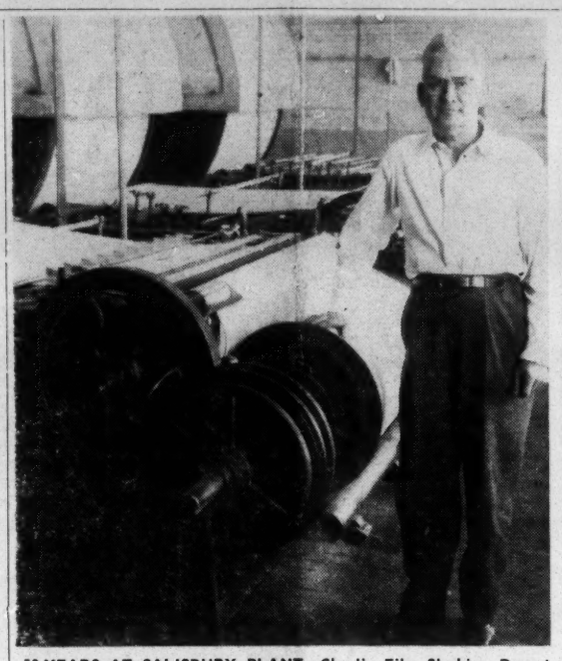
Churches Combine Easter Sunrise Service

A united Easter Sunrise service will be held Easter Sunday morning at Carraway Memorial Methodist Church. The Sixteenth Street Baptist Church is cooperating in this annual event.

Rev. William Bennett, pastor of the Sixteenth Street Church, will bring the message. The Carraway Memorial choir will furnish Easter music. The young people of Carraway will participate in the service.

Night School Program

Report of the Vocational Night School banquet which took place last night will appear in next week's Textorian.



50-YEARS AT SALISBURY PLANT—Charlie File, Slashing Department employee at Salisbury Plant, will be honored on Saturday night April 7 for having completed a half century of service with the company.

Salisbury To Have 2nd. Service Event April 7

Five employees of Salisbury Plant will receive 25-year Service Awards, and one, Charlie Lee File, will receive a 50-year award on Saturday night April 7. A dinner in honor of these and over 100 employees with more than 25 years service will be held at 6:30 p.m. at Coburn Memorial Methodist Church in Salisbury. Clarence N. Cone, vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, will be speaker for the event, second of its kind to be held at Salisbury.

The planning committee made up of employees there has completed arrangements for the program. They are Lester Bost, Finishing Department; Miss Mamie J. Brown, Finishing; H. E. Byerly, Weaving Department; Mrs. Myrtle Dedmond, Finishing; Hoyle Ellenburg, Weaving; Mrs. Nola Hathcock, Weaving; Mrs. Vivian U. Hefner, Weaving; Miss Pauline Safrit, Beaming Department; J. Burns Trexler, Shop; Glenn Yates, Carding Department.

The new 50-year employee, Mr. File, is a Salisbury native, born in 1895. He came to work on July 1, 1905 in the Spinning Room. There he served as general handy-man, since he doffed, oiled, spun, hauled roving and ran errands. In 1911, he went to work in the Beaming Department but alternated his work in the Weaving Department as weaver or filling hauler. He has been operating a slasher for the past 17 years.

In 1914, Mr. File married Miss Fannie Lee Canup in Salisbury. They have seven children and eight grandchildren. They are James Adam File, Mrs. Edith Reid, William File and Frances File, all of Salisbury; Ernest Spencer File and Herbert File of the U. S. Navy, and Allen File of the U. S. Marine Corps.

For 50 years Mr. File has been a member and regular attendant at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Salisbury. His hobby is shoe repairing, and in his spare time for the past 10 years, he has successfully operated a shoe repair shop.

Salisbury Plant's history is a tribute to the ingenuity of Salisbury citizens. An outgrowth of an 1887 religious revival and solicitation and planning by a community group, a 200-loom mill was constructed the next year to provide a way for people "to make an honest living."

Although it was not until 1920 that the Cone interests purchased a majority of the Salisbury Cotton Mills stock, the mill had chosen the Cone Export and Commission Company (now Cone Mills Inc.) as its selling agent as early as 1891.

Today, after 69 years of steady growth, the Salisbury Plant of Cone Mills Corporation, as it became known in 1952, has 27,392 spindles and 782 looms turning out fashionable Cone sport denims.

Of the 665 employees of the Salisbury Plant, more than 100 have served the company for over a quarter of a century, two for over half a century.

HONORED BY PYTHIANS—William B. Burke, left, is shown receiving a plaque citing his 30 years as a member of the Knights of Pythias. Claude Best, Chapel Hill, past grand chancellor, is making the presentation. He holds the scrap book, entitled "This is Your Life," also given to Mr. Burke. Approximately 200 Pythians and guests attended the meeting in his honor last Monday night.

Pythians Pay Honor To W. B. Burke On 30th Anniversary

"This is Your Life" was theme of the program given by Cone Lodge 158, Knights of Pythias, in honor of William B. Burke, who was observing his 30th anniversary as a Pythian. The event was held in the Lodge Hall at White Oak last Monday night with approximately 200 Pythians and guests attending. Following testimonials of those influential in the various phases of his life, Mr. Burke received a plaque from the local lodge and a citation from the Wachovia Lodge of Winston-Salem.

The honoree is the imperial representative of the Supreme Lodge for North Carolina, chairman of the Knights of Pythias Foundation, chairman of the finance committee of the Imperial Palace and chairman of the Pythian Home at Clayton. Monday night he accepted the chairmanship of the committee to consolidate the publications of the Pythians and Pythian Sisters.

The program was in the manner of a popular television show. The first to give testimonal was Claude Best, past grand chancellor of North Carolina, who served as master of ceremonies, substituting for Judge Shelton Roper of Lincolnton.

Others were Mrs. Burke and their daughter, Mrs. Barbara Burke Vick and her two children; another daughter, Mrs. Robert Beal and her three children; Clarence N. Cone, vice president of Cone Mills Corporation; Frank Starling, assistant superintendent of White Oak Plant and president of Cone Memorial YMCA; Joe Rierson, Winston-Salem, clerk of Police Court; Robert Frazier, former mayor of Greensboro; Charles T. McNary, president of the Greensboro YMCA; Peter S. Ford, Martinsville, Va.; O. S. Story, Sulfolk, Va., deputy supreme chancellor; Dewey Huggins Clayton grand secretary.

Mr. Burke's wife and daughters praised him as husband and father. Mr. Cone discussed Mr. Burke's contribution to the operation of Cone Mills. Mr. Starling spoke on his interest in sports, especially baseball which has been emphasized in the Cone Mills communities through his efforts. Mr. Rierson added a humorous note by telling of the time Mr. Burke was arrested for running through three stoplights in his haste to attend a lodge meeting. Former Mayor Frazier discussed Mr. Burke as a city councilman and paid tribute to him as a cooperative worker. Mr. McNary told of Mr. Burke's interest in and work with the YMCA.

Pythian leaders Ford, Story and Huggins pointed out Mr. Burke's achievements as a Pythian and Dokkie, both locally and nationally.

Congratulatory letters and telegrams from Pythians in several states were read.

The plaque from the Cone Lodge read: "To W. B. Burke whose life has been an inspiration to all,

Cone Plants Using Many Ways In Encouraging Interest In Safety

Injuries by accident are no longer considered as unavoidable in the various plants of Cone Mills Corporation. Just as the average person has learned to take better care of his health, so also he is learning that people need not be crippled or killed by accidents if they will be just a little thoughtful for themselves and others.

Sydney M. Cone Jr.

Sydney Cone To Serve Again As Head Of Research Institute

Sydney M. Cone, Jr., vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, last night was re-elected to the presidency of the Textile Research Institute, Princeton, N. J., at the 26th annual meeting at Hotel Commodore, New York City. The Cone official has served one year as president of the institute.

Mr. Cone will discuss the "State of the Institute" at the luncheon meeting there today. He will also introduce the guest speaker, Hermand D. Rhum, Jr., president of Burlington Industries, Inc., who will discuss "Some Unsolved Problems."

The Textile Research Institute publishes the Textile Research Journal, conducts seminars on specific subjects, trains graduate students, provides basic laboratory research in all fibers and participates in affairs of other scientific societies.

Pineville

Several different means of encouraging interest are being used in the various plants. At Pineville, the overseers decided tthey would like to get a "black sheep" and award it each month to the department with the poorest safety record. Edison Lineberry made the sheep of plywood. The sheep's picture appeared in the Textorian on January 27.

Proximity, White Oak

Proximity and White Oak Plants both have safety committees which have been working to improve accident prevention for some time. Recently committee members in each plant, some of whom rotate each month, met for orientation and discussion of plant accident causes.

Salisbury

In the Salisbury Plant a Quality and Safety Committee is at work. Revolution also has a Quality Committee whose interests include housekeeping which affects employee safety.

Revolution

Revolution is running a contest among the various departments of the plant to determine the safest department during the five month period beginning January 30 and ending June 30. Each employee in the winning department will receive an inscribed token.

Edna

Edna Plant, in Reidsville, now has a total of 1,300,000 employee hours since the last disabling injury. When an accident occurs in this plant, it the subject of a widespread and thorough investigation in which management leads the way and various employees take part.

Compete For Award

All Cone plants are automatically competing for the North Carolina Department of Labor Safety Achievement award which is given each year to the plants having either no disabling injuries or an accident record 40% better than the previous year. In 1954, nine Cone plants won this award. Just five Cone plants qualified and will receive the award for 1955.

Revival Now Going On At Carraway Church

Revival services are now under way at Carraway Memorial Methodist Church with Mrs. C. L. Steidley of High Point, evangelist. Services are being held each evening, including Saturdays through March 31. They will close Easter Sunday with the 11 a.m. service. G. E. White is pastor.

Easter Holiday

The Greensboro plants of Cone Mills Corporation will stand Monday, April 2 in observance of Easter.

Third shifts will resume operations at 11 o'clock Monday night, April 2, and first and second shifts will start up at the regular time on Tuesday, April 3.

Life returns what we put into it —with interest.

A Neglected Field

When syndicated financial columnist Sylvia Porter spoke at a press institute at the University of North Carolina last Saturday night, she pointed out some salient truths to the journalists and educators. She told them that although economics is the basis of all wars and social upheavals, it is the most neglected field from the standpoint of newspapers and classrooms.

Strongly criticising the press and other media for assuming that the public already knows certain economic facts, she asserted that the American people want to know them and are intelligent enough to understand them, providing they are presented in simple, layman's language.

"The economics jargon used today in the public press amounts to economists talking to economists," she asserted.

This is certainly true. A great danger to the American way of life lies in people's very ignorance of what makes it such a way of life, enjoyed by no other nation in the world today. A society which is completely oblivious to what makes it tick is easy prey for gross misinterpretations and adverse propaganda.

Citing the facts that today's average housewife has a hard time keeping her checkbook straight and that most people have no idea of the fabulous prices they are paying by buying on the installment plan, Miss Porter declared that every high school and college should have at least one required course in economics.

The columnist, who is also financial editor of the New York Post, insisted that more front page space be given to economic news of the nation affecting the lives of every person and that less front page space be given to weddings of prominent political and cinema figures. We might say, however, that a certain amount of the human interest element adds greatly to the readership of any paper.

In this day of high living standards when vast sums of money are being spent on publications, television shows, radio programs and other ways of telling people about things, it is paradoxical that the average person knows so little about the economy of the nation which has made that standard of living possible.

WINTER DRIVING GUIDE

1. Allow extra driving time for your trip. Remember, the roads will be crowded and winter's gloom makes driving hazardous.

2. Accept your responsibility to drive without accident. Be prepared to meet any situation.

3. Get the "feel" of the road. Try your brakes occasionaly while driving slowly and away from traffic. Find out how slipperry the road is, and adjust your speed accordingly.

4. Be sure your headlights and windshield wipers are in top condition. You have to see danger to avoid it.

5. Pump your brakes to slow down or stop on wet pavement. Jamming your brakes can throw you into a dangerous skid.

6. Follow at a safe distance—give yourself room to stop. It takes three to 12 times as far to stop on wet pavement as on dry concrete.

7. Check your spare tire and remember your state law requires you to pull all four wheels off the highway when you change a tire.

Leave early and be thankful for a safe return.

A Red Cross safety suggestion. Sightseeing on the highways—swimming at the beach—making trail through the mountains—use care, caution, and common sense. It's the right way and it's the only way to really enjoy your outing.

Correction

Last week's Textorian stated that UNC honor student Michael Hayes' father, C. E. Hayes, is assistant overseer in the White Oak Weaving Department. He is assistant overseer in the Slashing Department. The paper was furnished the incorrect information.

Apologia

The Textorian regrets that last week the name of Gordie Boyd, superintendent of Print Works Plant, was omitted from the cut line under the photo showing him presenting a $50.00 check to Willie F. Smith for a suggestion Mr. Smith made recently.

The citation from the Wachovia Lodge read:

"William B. Burke

"This is your party!

"From all of us to you, Bill Burke . . .

When the clock of time has closed the scope of our relations, and we are made to kiss the balmy breezes of the Eternal shores, we shall be found searching for the souls made glad by your noble spirit of the yesterdays.—Now that we are permitted to refer to the yesterdays that have not come, may we commune with you in closer fellowship and deeper admiration for your sacrifices and Pythian Leadership throughout these many years, always giving not of your wisdom, but rather of your faith and love as revealed in our Pythian ritual.

"Love has found you worthy and therefore, directs your course.—We are happy to witness your labors here and also the unfolding fullness of your time to our beloved community. . .
